BACKGROUND OF THIS CASE

Plaintiff is an inmate at the Perry Correctional Institution of the South Carolina Department of Corrections. In the above-captioned case, Plaintiff has brought suit against the State of South Carolina and the Attorney General of South Carolina with respect to the decision of the Supreme Court of South Carolina in Land v. State, 274 S.C. 243, 262 S.E.2d 735 (1980), which relates to successive applications for post-conviction relief in South Carolina.

In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleges or contends: (1) Land v. State is unconstitutional [Doc. 1 at 2]; (2) Land v. State became law prior to the enactment of the Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act [Id. at 3]; (3) the “three strikes” rule violates the Ex Post Facto Clause [Id.]; (4) an evidentiary hearing should be held [Id.]; (5) this Court should reinstate Plaintiff’s “FULL PCR RIGHTS” in Greenville, South Carolina [Id.]; (6) the jury at Plaintiff’s trial could not reach a verdict [Id. at 4]; (7) Judge Traxler allowed the jury to listen to tapes of the trial and, thereby, violated the Double Jeopardy clause [Id.]; (8) Judge Traxler invalidated the indictment by amending it [Id.]; (9) Section 1983 is the “PROPER ROAD” to have a constitutional right protected [Id.]; and (10) the Thirteenth Amendment and the Emancipation Proclamation protect Plaintiff from involuntary servitude [Id. at 5]. In his prayer for relief, Plaintiff seeks to have his “PCR RIGHTS” restored and to have Land v. State found unconstitutional [Id. at 7].

DISCUSSION

Standard of Review for Pro Se Complaints

Under established local procedure in this judicial district, a careful review has been made of the pro se Complaint pursuant to the procedural provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915, 28 U.S.C. § 1915A, and the Prison Litigation Reform Act. Pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B) and Local Civil Rule 73.02 DSC, the undersigned is authorized to review such complaints for relief and submit findings and recommendations to the District Court. The review has been conducted in light of the following precedents: Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25, 31–35 (1992); Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324–25 (1989); Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 519 (1972)(per curiam); Nasim v. Warden, Maryland House of Corr., 64 F.3d 951, 953–56 (4th Cir. 1995)(en banc); Todd v. Baskerville, 712 F.2d 70, 71–74 (4th Cir. 1983); Loe v. Armistead, 582 F.2d 1291, 1295–96 (4th Cir. 1978); and Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir. 1978). Plaintiff is a pro se litigant, and thus his pleadings are accorded liberal construction. See Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 90–95 (2007)(per curiam); Hughes v. Rowe, 449 U.S. 5, 9–10 (1980)(per curiam); and Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 321–23 (1972)(per curiam). When a federal court is evaluating a pro se complaint or petition, a plaintiff's or petitioner's allegations are assumed to be true. Merriweather v. Reynolds, 586 F. Supp. 2d 548, 554 (D.S.C. 2008). Nonetheless, a litigant must plead factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant or respondent is plausibly liable, not merely possibly liable. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 680–84 (2009). Even when considered under this less stringent standard, the Complaint is subject to summary dismissal. The requirement of liberal construction does not mean that the court can ignore a clear failure in the pleading to allege facts which set forth a claim currently cognizable in a federal district court. Weller v. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 901 F.2d 387, 390–91 (4th Cir. 1990).

Requirements for a Cause of Action Under Section 1983

This action is filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, which provides a private cause of action for constitutional violations by persons acting under color of state law. Section 1983 “is not itself a source of substantive rights,’ but merely provides ‘a method for vindicating federal rights elsewhere conferred.’” Albright v. Oliver, 510 U.S. 266, 271 (1994) (quoting Baker v. McCollan, 443 U.S. 137, 144 n. 3 (1979)). Accordingly, a civil action under § 1983 allows “a party who has been deprived of a federal right under the color of state law to seek relief.” City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd., 526 U.S. 687, 707 (1999).

Section 1983 provides, in relevant part:

Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State . . . subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or any person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress . . .

42 U.S.C. § 1983. To establish a claim under § 1983, a plaintiff must prove two elements: (1) that the defendant “deprived [the plaintiff] of a right secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States;” and (2) that the defendant “deprived [the plaintiff] of this constitutional right under color of [State] statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage.” Mentavlos v. Anderson, 249 F.3d 301, 310 (4th Cir. 2001) (third alteration in original) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

Plaintiff Fails to State a Claim under § 1983

Thirteenth Amendment not applicable

In the Complaint, Plaintiff asserts that his prison sentences constitute involuntary servitude under the Thirteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution. The Thirteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution states:

Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the Unites States or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

U.S. Const. amend. XIII. Thus, by its own language, the Thirteenth Amendment does not apply to a prisoner serving a sentence for a criminal conviction. Hence, Plaintiff’s claim of involuntary servitude is subject to summary dismissal as frivolous. See Newell v. Davis, 563 F.2d 123, 124 (4th Cir. 1977) (“The District Court did not address the claim under the Thirteenth Amendment, perhaps because it was so obviously without merit.”); and Cox v. Ozmint, Civil Action No. 3:12-225-TMC-JRM, 2012 WL 1415181, at *2 (D.S.C. Mar. 19, 2012) (rejecting Thirteenth Amendment claim in prior case filed by Plaintiff), adopted by 2012 WL 1415149 (D.S.C. Apr. 24, 2012). Because Plaintiff does not allege a violation of a constitutional right, his § 1983 claim fails.

Plaintiff's Complaint barred by Heck v. Humphrey

Plaintiff's Complaint concerns matters pertaining to his convictions for assault and battery with intent to kill and possession of contraband by a prisoner, which were entered in the Court of General Sessions for Greenville County in 1987. However, until the Plaintiff's convictions are set aside, any non-habeas civil action based on the convictions and related matters will be barred by the holding in Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994), which held:

[W]hen a state prisoner seeks damages in a § 1983 suit, the district court must consider whether a judgment in favor of the plaintiff would necessarily imply the invalidity of his conviction or sentence; if it would, the complaint must be dismissed unless the plaintiff can demonstrate that the conviction or sentence has already been invalidated.

Heck, 512 U.S. at 487; see also Poston v. Shappert, No. 06-8052, 222 Fed.Appx. 301, 2007 WL 1031695 (4th Cir. Mar. 30, 2007) (claims brought pursuant to § 1983 challenging underlying criminal conviction are barred by Heck). Plaintiff has neither alleged nor demonstrated that his underlying convictions or sentences have been invalidated; thus, this action is barred by Heck. Mills v. Greenville County, 586 F. Supp. 2d 480, 489–90 (D.S.C. 2008).

Plaintiff's remedy lies in habeas corpus

Although Plaintiff seeks to have his "PCR" rights reinstated, he is, in effect, seeking release from prison. Plaintiff cannot obtain release from prison in this civil rights action. See Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. at 481 (stating that "habeas corpus is the exclusive remedy for a state prisoner who challenges the fact or duration of his confinement and seeks immediate or speedier release, even though such a claim may come within the literal terms of § 1983”); and Johnson v. Ozmint, 567 F. Supp. 2d 806, 823 (D.S.C. 2008) (release from prison is not a remedy available under 42 U.S.C. § 1983).

Plaintiff has had a Section 2254 action adjudicated on the merits with respect to his convictions for assault and battery with intent to kill and possession of contraband by a prisoner entered in the Court of General Sessions for Greenville County on August 4, 1987. See Cox v. McCabe, Civil Action No. 3:11-3113-TMC-JRM, 2012 WL 77017, at *2–3 (D.S.C. Jan. 10, 2012). As a result, Plaintiff must seek leave to file a successive habeas corpus petition with respect to his various convictions and sentences. Leave from the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit is now required under the Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 for filers of successive § 2254 petitions. See In re Vial, 115 F.3d 1192, 1194 (4th Cir. 1996) (“Under the AEDPA, an individual may not file a second or successive § 2254 petition for a writ of habeas corpus or § 2255 motion to vacate sentence without first receiving permission to do so from the appropriate circuit court of appeals.”); and In re Fowlkes, 326 F.3d 542, 544 (4th Cir. 2003) (“Since Fowlkes has previously filed a section 2254 motion, he may only file a successive section 2254 motion if he receives authorization from this court under the standard established in section 2244(b)(3)(C).”). Before Plaintiff attempts to file another habeas petition in the United States District Court for the District of South Carolina with respect to his conviction for kidnapping, he must seek and obtain leave (i.e., written permission) from the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b)(3). Plaintiff can obtain the necessary form for doing so from the Clerk's Office of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit (1100 East Main Street — Suite 501, Richmond, Virginia 23219). See In re: Williams, 330 F.3d 277, 283 (4th Cir. 2003). The form is entitled "Motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2244 for Order Authorizing District Court to Consider Second or Successive Application for Relief under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2254 or 2255."

Eleventh Amendment Immunity

The Eleventh Amendment prevents a federal court from entertaining a suit brought by a citizen against his or her own state, Hans v. Louisiana, 134 U.S. 1 (1890), or against an instrumentality of the state considered an "arm of the State[.]" Regents of Univ. of Calif. v. Doe, 519 U.S. 425, 430 (1997). Similarly, to the extent that the South Carolina Attorney General is being sued in his official capacity as an agent of South Carolina, this action cannot be brought in this federal court because of the Eleventh Amendment. See Morstad v. Dept. of Corr. and Rehab., 147 F.3d 741, 744 (8th Cir.1998) ("absent a waiver, the Eleventh Amendment immunizes the state and its officials acting in their official capacities from § 1983 liability"). Furthermore, the doctrine of respondeat superior (or supervisory liability) generally is inapplicable to § 1983 suits. See Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658, 694 (1978); and Fisher v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Auth., 690 F.2d 1133, 1142–43 (4th Cir. 1982), abrogated on other grounds by Cnty. of Riverside v. McLaughlin, 500 U.S. 44 (1991). Accordingly, Plaintiff's Complaint is barred by the Eleventh Amendment.

Plaintiff is “struck out”

Plaintiff is subject to the “three strikes” rule of the Prison Litigation Reform Act. The “three strikes” rule, codified at 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), provides:

In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.

28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).

A federal court may take judicial notice of its own records. See, e.g., Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Coil, 887 F.2d 1236, 1239 (4th Cir. 1989) (“We note that ‘the most frequent use of judicial notice is in noticing the content of court records.’”). It can be judicially noticed that Plaintiff has filed three prior cases in this Court, which have been dismissed with prejudice, as frivolous, and deemed “strikes” under § 1915(g). See Cox v. U.S. Att’y Gen., et al., Civil Action No. 3:12-591-TMC, 2012 WL 1570093 (D.S.C. May 3, 2012); Cox v. S.C. Dep’t of Corr. Dir. Jon E. Ozmint, et al., Civil Action No. 3:12-225-TMC, 2012 WL 1415149 (D.S.C. Apr. 24, 2012); and Cox v. United States, Civil Action No. 3:12-50-TMC, 2012 WL 1158861 (D.S.C. Apr. 9, 2012). In light of these “strikes” imposed in 2012, Plaintiff cannot proceed with the instant Complaint unless his claim satisfies the exception for imminent physical harm provided by the “three strikes” rule. See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g); and Torres v. O’Quinn, 612 F.3d 237, 246 (4th Cir. 2010).

Moreover, the Court of Appeals has held that the “three strikes” provision of the Prison Litigation Reform Act is applicable with respect to “strikes” entered after its enactment on April 26, 1996. See Altizer v. Deeds, 191 F.3d 540, 545–47 (4th Cir. 1999); and Cox v. United States, Civil Action No. 3:12-52-TMC-JRM, 2012 WL 1570081, at *2 (D.S.C. Mar. 28, 2012) (“In this case, Plaintiff provides no facts to demonstrate that the three strikes rule was retroactively applied to any of his civil actions filed in federal court prior to the law's enactment. In addition, the enactment of the three strikes rule in no way increases Plaintiff’s punishment for his current conviction. As such, Plaintiff’s ex post facto argument is without merit and this case is subject to summary dismissal.”), adopted by 2012 WL 1570075 (D.S.C. May 3, 2012), which was a prior case filed by Plaintiff.

The Complaint in the above-captioned case does not fit within the exception to proceed in forma pauperis as Plaintiff does not allege that he is in imminent danger of serious physical injury. Therefore, to proceed with this Complaint, Plaintiff must pay the full filing fee. Effective May 1, 2013, the Judicial Conference of the United States raised the filing fee for a civil case. The filing fee (set by the Congress and the Judicial Conference of the United States) for a non-habeas civil action is now four hundred dollars ($400). As a result, Plaintiff must pay the full filing fee of four hundred dollars ($400).

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended that Plaintiff’s motion to proceed in forma pauperis [Doc. 2] be DENIED. It is further recommended that Plaintiff be given twenty-one (21) days from the date the United States District Judge rules on this Report and Recommendation to pay the filing fee of four hundred dollars ($400) and that the Office of the Clerk of Court withhold entry of judgment until such time for payment expires. If Plaintiff fails to pay the filing fee within the specified time period, it is further recommended that the Complaint be dismissed without prejudice under the “three strikes” rule of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), and that the Clerk of Court enter the required final judgment at the close of the twenty-one-day period permitted for payment of the filing fee.

Plaintiff’s attention is directed to the Notice on the next page.

Plaintiff is advised that he may file specific written objections to this Report and Recommendation with the District Judge. Objections must specifically identify the portions of the Report and Recommendation to which objections are made and the basis for such objections. “[I]n the absence of a timely filed objection, a district court need not conduct a de novo review, but instead must ‘only satisfy itself that there is no clear error on the face of the record in order to accept the recommendation.’” Diamond v. Colonial Life & Acc. Ins. Co., 416 F.3d 310 (4th Cir. 2005) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 72 advisory committee’s note).

Specific written objections must be filed within fourteen (14) days of the date of service of this Report and Recommendation. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b); see Fed. R. Civ.
